second half. They then went on a 21-5 scoring run and never looked back. The Jackets coasted into the final minutes with a 20-point lead and comfortably won the game.

Tech's home opener at Alexander Memorial Coliseum saw the Jackets hosting Arkansas-Pine Bluff. Kasha Terry picked up her second career double-double. She went 4-8 from the floor for 12 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

Mitchell, Higgs and Jacqua Williams all scored in double figures with 15, 10 and 10 points respectively. The game started with the Jackets and Golden Lions trading shots, and the Lions even led by two points early on.

That lead didn't last more than two minutes as the rest of the half saw the Jackets outscore the Lions 26-4 finishing the run with the Jackets leading 32-12. The rest of the game went by pretty fast with the Jackets never leading by fewer than 10 points and going on an 18-1 scoring run halfway through the second half. LaToya Thomas led the Golden Lions with 11 points and eight rebounds.

Tech won 66-50 against the College of Charleston. Higgs led the scoring with 17 points. Mitchell had a double-double as she scored 14 points and had 10 rebounds; Jill Ingram rounded out the top scorers with 13 points of her own. Tech scored 21 points from the free-throw line in 26 attempts. The Cougars were held to just 11 free throws, which proved to be the difference in the scoring as both teams had similar scores on the floor. The turning point in the game came in the middle of the first half. With the score tied at 13, Tech went on an 18-4 scoring run to lead by 14 at the half. From there, they had a steady lead throughout the second half that fluctuated between eight and 17 points. Melissa Chambers and Marketta Talley led the scoring for the Cougars with 15 and 11 points respectively.

Tech downed Appalachian State 68-45 on Sunday. Nnamaka was 3-4 in three-point shooting and finished with 10 points against the Mountaineers. Terry was a perfect 6-6 from the floor and Higgs went 5-13 as both finished with 13 points. Tech never trailed in this game and led by as many as 27 points. Tech made three more three-point shots and had 10 more free throws while Jacket bench players outscored the Mountaineer bench 24-19.

The Jackets play at No. 17 Georgia this Sunday at 2 p.m. The women's team won't play a conference team until next semester when they face Miami on Jan. 5.

Last second shot misses as Tech falls to Michigan State

By Wei Liao/STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

Sophomore guard Zam Fredrick (35) shoots over Illinois-Chicago's Robert Bush (14). Fredrick led the Jackets that game with 17 points.

By Akshay Amaraneni
Contributing Writer

Even though Tech never led against the Michigan State Spartans, the Jackets were never far behind in Wednesday night's contest, which was part of the ACC/Big Ten Challenge.

With six seconds left in the game while the Jackets were behind by five points, Ra'Sean Dickey hit a crucial three-pointer to keep the Jackets' hopes alive by bringing the team within two points, 88-86. The Jackets hadn't been within two points since the first half with 15 minutes left.

After the Spartan inbound pass, Anthony Morrow immediately fouled Michigan State's Paul Davis who would have two free-throws to try to put his team ahead.

But when Davis missed both his free throws, the Jackets had one more chance. After moving the ball down to the other end of the court Zam Fredrick's desperation three-point shot bounced off the iron and missed as the Jackets fell to 2-2 on the season.

Dickey led the Jackets with 24 points, followed by Morrow who scored 23. Jeremis Smith picked up the double-double with 14 points and 10 rebounds. Fredrick scored 11 points.

Tech opened up the 2005-2006 basketball season last week with two wins and one loss. Against UNC-Asheville at Alexander Memorial Coliseum the Jackets picked up an 80-52 win. Morrow led the team 15 points. He was 3-5 from behind the arc and had four rebounds. Sophomore Jeremis Smith was the second leading scorer with 14 points, nine rebounds and three steals. Dickey helped with 12 points and six rebounds. Freshman Lewis Clinch added 13 points and was 1-3 in three-point shooting.

Unlike last year, where there was a transition from seasoned starters to freshman backups, the Jackets started this year with a completely new starting five as well as a very young team. After losing five seniors and a junior to the draft, the young team stepped up in the first game.

After the two teams started the game evenly, Head Coach Paul Hewitt applied defensive pressure. With the score tied 4-4, Tech went on a scoring run and took a 23-6 lead. The scoring started with a three-point shot from Morrow. A steal by Dickey led to another field goal that put the Jackets up 9-4. Dickey hit two free throws and Smith made one out of two of his free throws to put the Jackets up 12-4. The next play saw Asheville's Reid Augst steal a ball from senior Theodis Tarver and score to make the score 12-6. A quick three by Morrow, a steal by Smith for a dunk, followed by a Lewis Clinch steal for a basket put the Jackets up 19-6. Another quick two from Clinch made the score 21-6.

But then Asheville went on a run themselves and came back within five, trailing 26-21. From there, Tech's defensive pressure held the Bulldogs to just 31 additional points while the Jackets put up 54 to finish at 80-52. Chad Mohn had 21 points and nine rebounds, while Oliver Holmes scored 12 points for the visiting team.

In the second game of the season Tech used fewer bench players as the Jackets won 81-69 over the Elon Phoenix. For the second game in a row, Morrow led in scoring with 16 points, while Clinch added 14 off the bench. Morrow, who went 7-12 shooting, provided most of the confidence for the offense. Clinch shot 3-8, including 2-6 behind the arc, and hit six out of nine free throws. The Jacket defense allowed more points in this game than the first, as the Phoenix had three starters score in double figures.

Halfway through the first quarter, after leading 26-17, Tech scored 11 unanswered points to take a 37-17 lead. Frederick made two free throws to start the scoring drive. Turnovers and missed shots for Elon led to a nine-point scoring drive for the Jackets.

The Jackets led by as many as 22 points and took a 19-point lead into halftime. Elon made a surge at the end of the game, however, and cut the lead from 17 to 10 with two and a half minutes left on the clock. Key free throws by Frederick and Clinch helped the Jackets hold on to the win.

For Elon Chris Clalko led with 16 points and Scottie Rice followed with 14.

On Nov. 25, in the third home game of the season, Illinois-Chicago came into Alexander Memorial Coliseum and left an 'L' on Tech's record with a 73-51 thrashing of the Jackets. Frederick led Tech's scoring with 17 points and Dickey finished with 10 points and six rebounds. The difference though, in this game, was not so much the lack of scoring as the lack of defense. In the first two wins of the season, Tech out-rebounded their opponents. Illinois-Chicago won on the boards with 49 to Tech's 35 rebounds. Jovan Stefanov of the Flames had 11 rebounds, Justin Bowen had nine and Othys Jeffers finished with eight rebounds. Josh Mayo made a name for himself scoring 21 points.

The Jackets begin ACC competition this weekend when they host Virginia at 5:30 p.m. this Sunday.

Opinions: From the sidelines

Tech's loss to UGA narrows bowl-game possibilities

Gaylord Hotels Music City Bowl:

A likely scenario would place the Jackets in Nashville for the Gaylord Hotels Music City Bowl. Even though the bowl is not affiliated with the Atlantic Coast Conference, Tech could still end up playing in this bowl. Assuming that Virginia Tech wins the ACC Championship game tomorrow against Florida State, the Hokies will clinch a BCS Bowl berth. Even though the Seminoles made it to the championship game, they may not get selected by the Gator Bowl and be bumped for Miami.

The Peach Bowl will get the third crack at an ACC team and can choose between Florida State and Clemson. This leaves three teams—the team that does not get selected by the Peach Bowl, N.C. State and Georgia Tech—for two ACC bowl spots in the Meineke Car Care Bowl and the Champs Sports Bowl. If the Jackets

The Final Four Bowl Possibilities

Champs Sports Bowl

by William Bretherton

Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl

by Patrick Odneal

are not selected by either of these bowls, they are then eligible to take one of the spots not filled by other conferences, namely the SEC which has only six bowl-eligible teams. Because seven bowls are affiliated with the SEC, the Jackets could get an invite from the Gaylord Hotels Music City Bowl and would most likely face Minnesota from the Big 10.

Meineke Car Care Bowl:

Tech will play in the Meineke Car Care Bowl in Charlotte, N.C. on Dec. 31. This assumes that Miami goes to the Gator Bowl and that South Carolina is selected over Georgia for the Outback bowl.

This also assumes that LSU wins the SEC title game on Saturday. While there are a lot of assumptions, they are all very plausible. Georgia has not beaten a team ranked in the top five since 1985, and LSU is currently No. 4 in the nation.

With an LSU win tomorrow, Georgia will play Clemson in the Peach Bowl. Florida State will then get selected by the Champ Sports Bowl leaving Tech to get selected over Boston College, who played in that bowl last year in Charlotte.

Champs Sports Bowl:

After Virginia Tech beats Florida State tomorrow, the Seminoles will have lost four straight, making them a tough call for any of the top ACC bowls. The Gator Bowl has the first pick after the BCS and will more than likely choose Miami to play against Louisville. While Miami could decline on the basis of not wanting to play Louisville in both the bowl game and next year's season opener, this is unlikely to happen. The Peach Bowl then has the next choice. Florida State is the obvious choice as their fans travel well, and the Seminoles did win the Coastal Division of the ACC.

The next choice goes to the Champs Sports Bowl in Orlando. They will have the option to take Boston College, the Jackets for the second straight year in a row or Clemson. While Boston College has the better record, their team does not travel well and will not be chosen. While Tech and Clemson have identical records, the Jackets are a more attractive choice because they are one of only two teams to beat two top-10 squads this season. (The other is USC.) The Jackets would probably end up playing Colorado if they returned to Orlando.

Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl:

If Tech would have topped Georgia last Saturday, this would have been a likely destination. However, the season-ending loss seriously diminished these chances. On the bright side, the Peach Bowl does know that the hometown Tech fans would help fill the Georgia Dome to capacity, but call it the longshot compared to the other three bowls.

Tech falls to rival in low-scoring game

By Patrick Odneal
Sports Editor

The Jackets took an early 7-0 lead with ten minutes left in the first quarter as quarterback Reggie Ball connected with Calvin Johnson from the two-yard line. Five minutes later the Georgia Bulldogs scored to tie the game, and the contest would remain tied for most of the rest of the game.

The Bulldogs scored with about three minutes left in the game to take the win. To start that drive, Thomas Flowers returned a Ben Arndt punt 33 yards to the Tech 39-yard line. Bulldog quarterback D.J. Shockley completed three passes in a row to drive to the Tech 24-yard line. A 5-yard offside penalty against the Jackets moved the Bulldogs within the red zone.

Georgia next turned to sophomore tailback Thomas Brown, but Gerris Wilkinson and Eric Henderson shut Brown down for no gain on the run.

On second down, the Bulldogs went to the passing game again, and Shockley connected with Bryan McClendon for the 19-yard touchdown completion. With 3:18 left on the clock, the Bulldogs went up 14-7.

After the kickoff, the Jackets started from their own 26-yard line but would quickly move downfield. After a six-yard rush by senior P.J. Daniels, Ball connected with tight end George Cooper for a 16-yard completion as the Jackets moved to midfield. On the next play Ball took it himself and ran for 30 yards to the Georgia 22-yard line.

After an unsuccessful run by

By Charles Frey / STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

Sophomore Calvin Johnson's reception over defender DeMario Minter scored Tech's only touchdown of the game. Johnson had just two catches in the game that saw very few big offensive plays.

Daniels, Georgia's Greg Blue was called for pass interference on Johnson. The Jackets caught a break as that pass was thrown into a sea of Georgia defenders. The 15-yard penalty put the Jackets 11 yards shy of the game-tying touchdown.

But the hope for the Jackets would quickly fade, as Ball would throw an interception on the next play. Ball eyed Damarius Bilbo exclusively as Tim Jennings pulled in the interception to secure the victory for the Bulldogs.

Ball finished the game completing 18-35 for 155 yards, but also threw two interceptions and lost one fumble.

Daniels ran for 77 yards on 16 carries, and Ball picked up 64 yards on 14 carries.

Kicker Travis Bell attempted just one field-goal, a 47-yard kick with 12:53 left in the fourth quarter, but missed his opportunity to give the Jackets the three-point lead. Georgia kicker Brandon Coutu missed a 48-yard attempt in the second quarter.

The Jackets await a bowl-game decision in the coming week and are one of nine schools in the ACC that are bowl-eligible.

sports shorts

Soccer club comes close at nationals

The men's soccer club competed in the national tournament and lost in the quarterfinals. After downing Wisconsin, Southeastern Louisiana State and Oregon, the Tech team was in the final eight of the men's open division and would take on the University of California-Berkeley. Tech lost 4-3 in overtime to Berkeley who advanced to the national championship game.

Fall athletes earn All-ACC honors

Five members of the football team were selected to the All-ACC team. Sophomore Calvin Johnson was a unanimous first-team selection. Johnson pulled in 52 receptions for 869 yards this season.

Senior defensive end Eric Henderson was picked to the second team. Fellow members of the defense Gerris Wilkinson and Dawan Landry join Henderson as second-team selections along with running back P.J. Daniels. Senior tackle Brad Honeycutt received honorable mention recognition.
